High five for early years learning

ROYAL Greenwich schools have got top marks on two fronts, according to government figures published this month.

The latest assessments showed that children under five in Greenwich were the highest achievers in the country, as the council's investment in early years education starts to pay off.

It was also announced that Royal Greenwich schools have the fifth highest attendance rates in England and the third best in London. It follows a fall in pupil absences compared with a similar period last year – helping ensure that local children get the best chance of gaining vital skills and qualifications.

Results also show a strong, direct link between attendance rates and exam achievement. An analysis of this year's GCSE pupils in Greenwich found that those with attendance rates of 95% or above throughout their time at secondary school achieved almost three times better than those with poor attendance.

The council has launched a number of initiatives to help schools improve attendance including: working with families to address problems that might be stopping children from attending school

Please try to get your history facts right

I SUPPOSE that it's inevitable that, in trying to squash a 200 year-long article into a short article, some facts become distorted. (One long history lesson, GT October 15). But journalists and history teachers should always get their stories right. The caption under the black and white photo is very misleading it shows children of c. 1930 having to use what was then, and is now the school's Assembly Hall as a classroom. It was one of several phases when Eltham C of E School was overcrowded, because of rapid population growth and slow progress with building Council Schools in developing districts.

I must also take issue over the origins of the buns on Bonfire Day, November 5. Nobody ever left a bequest for giving currant buns to pupils at Eltham C of E School! The origin of the buns lies in the will of Richard Slynny, dating from 1642. He had worked for King James I and King Charles I, as Park Keeper at one of Eltham's Royal deer parks. So he, greatly relieved at the failure of the Gunpowder Plot on November 5 1605, let £1 a year to be spent on 'penny loaves' for the poor of Eltham, to be distributed annually on that night.

Miss Margaret E. Taylor, Pupil and Bun Recipient 1947-1952, New Eltham.

● THANK you for your very interesting and detailed letter. It's great to hear your interpretation of the historical events in Eltham, an area I'm sure you'd agree that has a rich history to rival anywhere in the UK. The information used to write the article was provided by the school and apologies if it did not quite tally with your experiences. Eltham C of E is organising a number of events to mark their bicentennial year and we will endeavour to ensure the accuracy of any future articles we may run. I'm sure you'll join us in wishing Eltham C of E success and happiness in their bicentennial year and the future. Ed

Former sheltered home looks like a doss house

WHY have the council closed Fred Styles house as a sheltered accommodation? One of the reasons was sharing showers. But why are they letting it out to young people? More and more people are moving in every week and it is starting to look like a doss house. My mother was one of the tenants, and like most of the people who were moved out is very happy with her new place. So come on Greenwich what's going on?

Jack Lee, Charlton

● FRED Styles House is one of seven sheltered schemes agreed for decommissioning by the council in March 2011, on the basis that it had more than 60 per cent bedsit accommodation and shared bathing facilities which failed to meet the future housing needs and expectations of people applying for this type of accommodation.

The former residents have all been rehoused and the Council is now looking at the redevelopment of the site for new homes. Currently the scheme is being occupied by property guardians who are helping to keep the property secure pending the development of proposals for the site. The properties are let to the guardians by a company acting on behalf of the council and in order to be eligible for the accommodation they must be employed and are carefully vetted. The redevelopment is a key part of plans to create much improved housing schemes for older

Police commendation for brave teen Ella

by Dick Townsend-Smith

BRAVE Ella Ell, aged 12, didn't hesitate when a teenage gang snatched a mobile phone from her brother Jay in Middle Park Avenue, Eltham.

They were followed into Eltham Palace Road on their way home by three boys aged around 14 or 15. The youths took off with the phone after shouting racist remarks and knife threats, but Ella chased after them as she called for help. She called police after borrowing a mobile from a passer-by and was able to give a full description to the police.

The detailed descriptions were circulated on police radio and, along with CCTV images, it made it easier to find and arrest the teenagers. They were charged and ordered to pay compensation and given Youth Offending orders.

Chief Inspector Andy Johnstone from Greenwich Police said: "The speed and good result of this investigation were directly influenced by the information provide by Ella. Her assertiveness and quick-thinking ensured that her brother got his mobile back and that those responsible were arrested and charged."

Now Ella has been commended for her outstanding bravery and determination. She was one of 10 local heroes who received commendations from Borough Commander Richard Wood for their professionalism and bravery during a presentation ceremony at the Woolwich Centre.

Ella told GT: "I didn't think about what I was doing – adrenalin just took over and I went after them. Because I was chasing them I was able to give the police descriptions of them, from their socks upwards!"

Another commendation went to Terry Bellenie, 25, who has dedicated more than 2,800 hours of unpaid work in the last two years working as a special constable. He said: "I am supposed to work as a Special 16 hours a month, but I usually average 100 hours. My aim is to join the police full-time in the future. Being in the Specials is really nice, it's like a big happy family."

Other commendations went to:

- Trainee detectives Dan Byron, Ian Waller and PC Suhail Bhat who arrested a burglar and found his camera held photos of naked women taken secretly

- Detective Sergeant Bruce Galbraith and DC Mark Ringrose for their diligence and tenacity in investigating a complex fraud case of money laundering in Thamesmead involving £15,000 cash, false passports and driving licences.

- PCs Catherine Ody, Jackie Connor and a male officer for their professionalism, resilience and teamwork in dealing with an attempted murder after being called to a domestic violence incident. The officers had to force entry and restrain the violent husband, later convicted of attempted murder and given a life sentence.

Commander Wood said: "I am incredibly proud of the work my officers have done and a commendation is the best way to recognise their professionalism, efforts, and tenacity."

regularly, improved monitoring procedures and regular visits by attendance officers to support each school.

Cllr Jackie Smith, the royal borough's cabinet member for children and young people, said: "All the research shows that young people get the best out of their education if they attend regularly. It's also a legal requirement for parents to make sure their child attends school.

"The improving levels of attendance show that parents in Greenwich recognise the value of regular attendance and are helping to ensure their children go to school regularly."

Remembrance day services

GREENWICH will mark this year's Remembrance Day with a weekend of events across the royal borough.

On Saturday November 9 a wreath laying ceremony will begin at the Memorial at Maze Hill. It will then pass on to St John's Church and the memorial in Charlton Village, before finishing at the memorial in Cemetery Lane. There will also be a service in Plumstead Cemetery at 10.40am consisting of a wreath laying ceremony followed by a visit to the memorial in Woolwich New Cemetery.

On Sunday November 10 a morning Remembrance Day parade and service will take place, beginning at 10.45am. There will be a parade of war veterans, ex-service groups and youth organisations, with a wreath laying ceremony at Eltham War Memorial and two-minute silence at 11am. This will be followed by a Remembrance Service in St. John's Church, Eltham. A morning remembrance service will also be held at St Michael's and All Angels Church, Abbey Wood.

On Monday November 11 there will be an observation of two minutes silence at 11am in Woolwich Town Hall in memory of those who fought and died, or were injured in the causes of peace and freedom.

Foot tunnels programme of works agreed

THE final phase of works to complete the refurbishment of Greenwich and Woolwich Foot Tunnels is now underway.

A new contractor has been appointed to complete the outstanding elements of the refurbishment and a programme of work has been agreed.

It includes:

- The installation of new lifts at Woolwich
- Removal of the protective hoardings to completely open up the staircases at Greenwich
- Work to improve the reliability of the lifts at Greenwich
- New roofs for both rotundas at Woolwich and Greenwich North
- Enhanced CCTV and safety measures at both tunnels

● The installation of real time on site information about the lifts

● A deep clean of both tunnels

A spokesman for the royal borough said: "The council again apologises to users of the Greenwich and Woolwich Foot Tunnels for the delays in completing the refurbishment programme and we would like to thank tunnel users for their patience."

November night time closures

TO complete the outstanding works on the foot tunnels as quickly as possible a series of night closures is planned for the Greenwich tunnel during November.

The tunnel will be open every day from 5am until 8pm and will be accessible via both stairs and lifts every day. It will close between 8pm and 5am to allow intensive works to take place. This programme of closures will start at 8pm on Monday November 4 and continue throughout the month.

The Woolwich Foot Tunnel will remain open 24/7 and is accessible via the stairs only until the new lifts have been installed, which should be complete spring next year.

● For further information about these works should email mike.neill@royalgreenwich.gov.uk or call 020 8921 8334

Would you debit it?

New direct debit service spells savings

COUNCIL tenants can now pay their housing charges by direct debit.

The royal borough has launched a new direct debit service making it easier for tenants to pay their rents as well as charges for garages and allotments.

It's one of the most straightforward ways to make regular payments and allows tenants to stay in control of housing charges. Once set up, it means bills will be paid automatically, avoiding the need for continual visits to the cash office or post office.

You can cancel your Direct Debit at any time, or re-arrange the date if your circumstances change. It's also the only method of payment that carries a money back guarantee in the event of an error by your bank, building society or the royal borough.

Housing charges are calculated by the royal borough's direct debit team and the service allows you to choose from a range of payment dates - either the 7th, 14th, 22nd or 28th of each month. The details are then confirmed in writing and your direct debit instruction is set.

After that the council can only collect the amounts stated on the dates agreed.

EASY AND FLEXIBLE: setting up a payment online

If any changes occur tenants will receive 10 working days' notice, so that they can query the amount or date as necessary.

The new direct debit service also means savings in processing payments for the council and greater value for money for residents. Figures show making a payment online is just £0.08p, compared to £2.23 for a phone call and £8.64 for a face-to-face visit.

Cllr Steve Offord, the royal borough's cabinet member for housing said: "I urge residents to switch their housing payments to direct debit as it is more flexible, a great way of saving time and ensures piece of mind. Switching is simple and easy to do and also provides value for money for our residents, as the online transactions result in significant cost savings for the royal borough."

At present the direct debit service is unavailable to tenants who receive housing benefit, but work is being undertaken to resolve this.

To set-up your direct debit you can complete an online form at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/housingpayments or call the direct debit Team on 020 8921 3201.

● For more information on the new direct debit service you can email housing-direct-debit@royalgreenwich.gov.uk

Lovell's Wharf proposal rejected

THE Royal Borough of Greenwich's planning board has rejected plans to develop the Lovell's Wharf area in East Greenwich.

During a meeting last Monday (October 21) councillors unanimously rejected revised plans from developer London and Regional Properties. The plans for the Lovell's Wharf project would have seen the number of homes rise from 282 to 528 and include 13 storey buildings.

However, the borough's planning board raised concerns about the proposal's impact on the local area, the scale of the work, the density of the development and loss of character for the local area as well as the removal of a hotel and rejected it. London and Regional Properties now have the right to appeal the board's decision.

Councillor Ray Walker, chair of the planning board, said: "We very carefully considered all aspects of this application, as of course we do with all applications, within the framework of nationally set planning legislation.

"We wanted as much information as possible to make our decision which included board members making a site visit so we could see for ourselves the exact context of what was being proposed.

"The board unanimously rejected the application as we felt that the size and scale of the development was not appropriate for its location. We also felt the density of the plans wasn't right for the location and that the proposals didn't fit with the nearby conservation area and Enderby Wharf.

Strong representations were made to us by local residents about the scheme and we thank them for attending and for making their views known. The applicants now have the right to appeal this decision."

Historic clipper

HRH The Duke of Edinburgh was in Greenwich to preside over a renaming ceremony for the world's oldest clipper ship, which was moored on a barge on the Thames near the Cutty Sark. Prince Philip came to the Old Royal Naval College on Friday, October 18, after a conference he led in 2001 decided to return HMS Carrick to her original name, the City of Adelaide. are based in traditions thousands of years old and the Greenwich ceremony respected ancient mariner superstitions. The Adelaide was built in 1864 as a passenger ship to bring migrants to South Australia from Britain. As sister ship and five years older than the Cutty Sark, the City of Adelaide is an impressive and tangible piece of maritime history. An estimated 250,000 Australians today are descendants of passengers who made the long and arduous voyage to the fledgling colony. She was moored next to the Cutty Sark for three days before beginning her last voyage from London to Port Adelaide next year. The voyage to Australia will end an extraordinary 14-year campaign by engineers, maritime historians, ship enthusiasts, descendants of the ship's migrants and supporters. The Adelaide had been regarded as unrecoverable from the banks of the Irvine River in western Scotland. For many years the ship was stranded by a heavily silted river and experts feared she could never be extracted. But a campaign to save her was launched, supported by the Duke of Edinburgh.

Support roadshow continues

HUNDREDS of people have signed up to quit smoking on this year's borough-wide 'Stoptober' Roadshow.

Supporting the National NHS 'Stoptober' Campaign, the royal borough roadshow is aimed at helping smokers to join in with the 28-day challenge to quit during the month of October.

Trained advisors from Charlton Community Trust were on hand to provide free, one-to-one support, lung age tests, Carbon Monoxide (CO) tests, as well as lots of information and advice. The service also offered flexible tailored-made support plans as quitting is different for everyone.

Research shows that if you give up smoking for four weeks, you are five times more likely to quit for good so people who gave up for October increased their chances of staying smoke-free for life.

Last year, 160,000 people across the UK gave up smoking as part of Stoptober and similar numbers are expected this year.

Quitter Giorgio Pin first came across a Stop Smoking Service stall in Woolwich three years ago and decided to quit using one of the groups.

Giorgio praised the Stoptober campaign saying: "When I started the stop smoking group three years ago, I found the joint quit date a major incentive. Feeling I was competing against other members of the group helped to spur me on and I was determined to stay quit. Since I gave up smoking, my circulation has improved and my lung age has gone down by 10 years!"

Roadshow adviser Ben Kirk, said: "Kicking the habit reduces the risk of cancer and Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disorder. It's also really vital for general health and fitness – both physical and mental."

"We have a flexible approach to quitting as everyone is different and with the right support, you are more likely to quit smoking for good."

As well as the health benefits, stopping will save the average smoker over £150 a month and almost £2,000 a year.

The roadshow will continue until November 16. Cllr John Fahy, the royal borough's cabinet member for health, adults and older people, said: "We know that with the right support smokers who quit are more likely to be successful and we offer a range of services including stop smoking drop-in clinics to help them throughout the year."

New centre of attention for children

SERVICES for young families have just become even more accessible as a popular community children's centre expands to The Parade at Horn Park.

The new facility makes very good use of surrounding space available making room for real improvement to the community.

So when a former shop fell vacant, the council took the opportunity to take it on as a base to deliver children's centre services.

The Vista Field at Horn Park has been set up opposite the community centre in Sibthorpe Road. An official opening took place last Tuesday (October 22) with a celebration party. A crèche will run in the morning during term time. There are also other daytime activities for children under five and their parents including a baby clinic, parent and baby groups, fitness dancing for under-fives, and a crèche for parents going to the fitness class in the community centre across the road on Wednesdays. Oral health and speech and language therapy sessions are available and a new class about setting

Learn two-gether

Classes aim to give toddlers a headstart

FAMILIES with children who are two may be eligible for free early learning places as part of an initiative to give youngsters a head start before they go to school.

It means youngsters who are two, or turning two in the next year, can receive up to 15 hours of free early learning a week if their families are on certain types of income-based benefits.

It's all part of the national Together for Twos programme which aims to improve children's development by offering good quality early learning from age two.

The free early learning places are available at nurseries, pre-school groups, crèches, schools, children's centres and childminders.

Cllr Jackie Smith, cabinet member for children's services, said: "Research has shown that early learning has a range of benefits for young children. It improves children's development, communication skills, helps them to socialise with others, as well as giving them access to new activities."

Alun Evans, whose son William attends the Child Adventure Nursery in Discovery, in West Thamesmead, said: "We took William down and it was immediately clear that the extra interaction with other children would really benefit him. The staff were really good, William bonded straight away and they made parents and carers feel very valued."

Childminder Louise Floyd, 27, from Thamesmead, said: "This stage of childhood is a very important phase and Together for Twos gives the opportunity for early socialising and interaction with other children, as well as a different experience through childminding."

A date for volunteering in the fast lane

A 'speed dating' session with a difference is being held to help the borough's voluntary organisations recruit new trustees and committee members.

People will spend just five minutes finding out more about an organisation they might be interested in getting involved with.

The event will be held from 6-8pm on Wednesday November 6 in the Millennium Suite at Charlton Athletic's ground at The Valley.

It is being organised jointly by the Volunteer Centre Greenwich and Greenwich Action for Voluntary Service (GAVS), which provides support to keep local charities operating successfully. It is being held as part of Trustees' Week 2013.

One person who knows more than most about being a trustee for local organisations is Judy Smith from Eltham, who has done the job for 30 years. She has just finished four years as a GAVS trustee, but in her time she has worked with five community building organisations, two young people's projects and a lunch club for older people.

She said: "The last 30 years have been extremely rewarding. I brought my practical skills of running a house and bringing up children, but I've also learned new skills. It's very rewarding to bring your skills from another field to put them to good use for voluntary sector. Charities need people with all sorts of different skills, such as financial, legal, and management skills, and just plain common sense. A lot of the time you need some of your members to be trustees as well as others from outside with skills in the business world.

"Being a trustee has its responsibilities but no-one should be afraid of them. There is always help and support available."

● Book places for the speed volunteering event by calling 020 8853 1331 or emailing membership@volunteersgreenwich.gov.uk. Drinks and a buffet will be provided.

BUILDING A BRIGHT FUTURE: The Duke unveils a plaque. Below, royal borough leader Chris Roberts and London Mayor Boris Johnson meet UTC students

THE borough's new university technical college, designed to give young people vital engineering and construction skills, was opened by the Duke of York on Thursday (October 24).

The college in Woolwich Road is offering a range of qualifications to help 14-18 year olds boost their job prospects and meet a growing demand for technically-trained workers.

Prince Andrew was joined for the ceremony by London Mayor Boris Johnson and Cllr Chris Roberts, leader of the royal borough.

He unveiled a plaque to commemorate the official opening and said: "It is clear that if we want to be a prosperous nation we have to look at the skills of the younger generation, so university technical colleges are very important."

"In the 20th century young people had to use their hands or their brains. In the 21st century we want them to use both. For you students taking up this challenge being offered, it will give you the competitive advantage as the years unfold. Technical education is something this country needs to make the difference between where we are now, and where we want to be in the future. It is really important to give young people the tools and the ability to do it."

Over £10 million has been invested in the Royal Greenwich UTC campus, with industry-standard facilities including top-of-the-range computer aided design workshops, specialised engineering project zones and a graphics and art studio.

Sponsored by the royal borough, the University of Greenwich, Transport for London (TfL) and construction company Wates, the college offers expert tuition in engineering, construction and design alongside core GCSEs and A- Levels. Students will also be working with £1.5m worth of industry standard equipment to help them develop the skills and techniques they will need for future careers.

The sponsors have helped to develop the curriculum and provided industry experts to train and mentor students, in addition to arranging visits to engineering and construction sites.

TfL has also donated a former Circle line tube carriage to give students hands-on engineering experience within school grounds.

Royal borough council leader Chris Roberts said: "With increasing levels of regeneration taking place in the borough, and the growing need for a highly-skilled workforce, it's vitally important that the curriculum adapts to equip our young people to take their place in the modern world of work."

This is something that our schools and colleges recognise, and we work closely with them to ensure that there is a good mix of specialisms and innovation available in the borough."

He added: "From the high numbers of applications it's clear that the UTC has a strong future, while the quality of facilities available mean that its students now have an unprecedented opportunity to build the skills, confidence and knowledge that they will need in their adult lives."

Students praised by the prince

AMONG the students who talked to Prince Andrew were Caitlin Moore and Alfie Allen, both 14, who are studying a BTEC in construction. Alfie said: "He was really interested in our designs - it was good to meet him." Year 10 building construction student Patricia Cotillo-Gomes, 15, from Woolwich, said: "The Prince asked me how the design I showed him worked." And environmental construction student Adrian Ibrahim, 17, from Plumstead, said: "I've seen him on TV, and it was a good feeling to see the Prince in person - it made me want to push myself more."

WARM WELCOME: Baroness Lawrence offers her congratulations to staff and pupils after the official opening, below, an interior shot of one new building

A creative approach to learning

THE extensively-rebuilt Eltham Hill School for girls was given a fanfare official opening last Tuesday (October 22) when the ceremonial ribbon was cut by Doreen Lawrence, campaigning mother of Stephen Lawrence. Now Baroness Lawrence of Clarendon following her peerage, she told students: "I am sure you girls are so pleased to come to be educated at this fantastic school." Eltham Hill is one of five secondary schools that has been rebuilt or substantially refurbished through the royal borough's Building Schools for the Future programme. Its new co-educational post-16 unit opened at the beginning of term in a new building with advanced technology and communication facilities that can connect the school with local, regional and global communities. Eltham Hill also offers students the prestigious International Baccalaureate (IB) diploma programme to sixth-formers. Addressing the whole school and guests, Baroness Lawrence spoke about her 20-year fight to get justice for her son after he was murdered at an Eltham bus stop. It led to two men being jailed last year. She explained the work of the Stephen Lawrence Foundation and the Stephen Lawrence Centre in Deptford, both set up as a lasting legacy to his memory. She said: "The recent concert for Stephen at The O2 attracted 15,000 people, and all the artists wanted to give their support to the Trust. Most of our staff are volunteers, so if any of you young people here want to join us, we would love to hear from you."

Answering questions from students, she said: "It wasn't until Stephen's death that I realised the impact that racism has – and that's something we hope to change because we all deserve equality."

One of the students taking part in the question and answer session was Helen Opuama, who is student president. She said: "Talking to her, she comes across as just a very normal person but one who is really inspiring. I want to go into politics, and she really inspired me."

The day also included a visit by the Mayor of Royal Greenwich, Cllr Angela Cornforth, who toured the school and talked to Year 11 students about how she became mayor.

Headteacher Madeleine Griffin said: "The outstanding facilities offered by our new buildings ensure that we will continue to provide an innovative and creative approach to learning for the 21st century. I have the pleasure of working with highly-motivated, creative and enthusiastic staff who work closely together to inspire and engage our students. The sense of pride staff and students have in the school is tangible. These are indeed exciting times."

The school site, once in the grounds of Eltham Palace, includes a Grade II listed Queen Anne wall and pavilion. The original school gates are also listed and the new design integrates these into the pedestrian entrance, creating a new garden known as the Van Dyke Garden.

A HISTORY of classical music dating back to 1400 is to be celebrated at the Royal Greenwich International Early Music Festival and Exhibition on behalf of the Trinity Laban Conservatoire of music and dance.

Early European classical music covering periods of Medieval, Renaissance and Baroque Western music dating between 1400 to 1800 will be performed at concerts from Thursday November 7 until Saturday 9.

Acts from across Europe including works from Bach, Purcell, J-F Rebel and M A Charpentier will be performing at the music extravaganza and Robert Howarth will be conducting the Trinity Laban Soloists and Orchestra on Thursday 7. The exhibition will feature historic classical instruments, contemporary ones and even some new creations and crafts. Some of the instruments are available to try out and some for purchase.

Early November is set to be a week to remember for music and dance fans as Greenwich Dance are also getting in on the action in partnership with Trinity Laban, as they invite award-winning choreographer Gary Clarke's acclaimed 'Lustrum' to Greenwich on Friday November 8.

Kat Bridge, Interim Artistic Director at Greenwich Dance said: "Gary Clarke's Lustrum is a truly innovative, exciting way to create new work and a fantastic professional development opportunity for dance artists and choreographers. It has had great success in Liverpool, Leeds and Edinburgh already, and we are delighted that through our partnership with Trinity Laban, we are able to bring it to Greenwich for its London debut."

The Lustrum will take place on Friday November 8 at 7.45pm at Greenwich Dance. The evening will also include work by regional artists including Greenwich Dance Resident Artists Joseph Toonga, as well as a post-show discussion forum with Gary Clarke and the Lustrum artists.

GREENWICH Comedy Festival goers are in for a 'real treat' promises magician and comedian Pete Firman, who has been gearing up for his return to the Royal Greenwich Festival.

"David O'Doherty, who is headlining is fantastic, the audience is going to be in for a real treat and the Greenwich Theatre is a perfect sized venue with ideal conditions for a comedy show. I haven't been there before, so I'm really looking forward to it," confessed Pete Firman.

The television magician and comic (The Magicians, The Secret World Of Magic) performed at last year's gag-fest at the Old Royal Naval College and can't wait to perform again in a part of London that he is very fond of.

Pete told GT: "I have been to Greenwich many times, Up The Creek was one of my first London gigs when I was starting out and I also performed at last year's Greenwich Festival. Audiences in Greenwich are lively and know what they like and it's always a good atmosphere so I'm looking forward to this one."

The Royal Greenwich Comedy Festival takes the form of an unprecedented comedy weekend this year with gigs across various venues in Greenwich and Eltham including Greenwich Theatre and Up The Creek. It takes place on Saturday 2 and Sunday 3 of November as part of the Royal Greenwich Festivals.

The Middlesbrough born performer revealed: "I am a magician but most of my work is on the comedy circuit so I always know that I need to make the magic as funny as possible. There are challenges that come with using magic in comedy, because comedy is often a much faster pace, jokes can be told in a matter of seconds where magic requires more planning and more time to perform, so it is about getting that balance right but it's something I'm very used to."

Pete is a unique performer who combines the two disciplines of magic and comedy in a way that is rare to come by and his brand

Festival Magic

DAVID O'DOHERTY: Pete Firman tips the headliner to be a big hit

PETE FIRMAN:
Television's new face of magic and comedy comes to Greenwich.

of showmanship is critically acclaimed, understandable then why festival organisers wanted to bring him back for a second year.

The weekend will also feature the return of the successful 'Comedy Academy', giving aspiring comedians a chance to learn from professional comics and develop their routines and persona for the stand up stage.

"The Comedy Academy sounds like a fantastic initiative," said Pete. "When I was starting off I had got hold of some books and got some advice from people about jokes but the way I really learned was by performing as much as possible and learning from stage experience.

"My advice to aspiring young comics would be to get out and about and perform material as much as possible, that's the only way you're going to be able to bring it all together and decide what kind of performer you want to be and how to deal with stage presence and persona and all of that. When I started off I would play anywhere and for any amount of money, it wasn't about earning money it was about learning and working regularly enough, but it all takes time to find your feet and it's good to remember that," he added.

MOVES ACROSS LONDON

The housingmoves scheme is run by the Greater London Authority and is aimed at social housing tenants who want to move from one part of London to another.

Priority is given to people who:

"Many athletes are developing quickly, so to make the senior British team is going to get even harder.

"But someone always comes out of nowhere and does well and hopefully this year I will be that person."

David took on Usain Bolt earlier in the year at a Diamond League meeting, giving him a taste of the big time, while also competing at the European Under 23 Championships, finishing seventh.

The former English Schools champion's best 100m time is 10.27 seconds, ranking him 14th nationally at senior level this year. He was ranked sixth over 200m with 20.60 seconds.

David won European Junior Championship gold over 200m in 2011 and bronze over 100m, a distance in which he was also Youth Olympic Games bronze medallist in 2010 and World School Games silver medallist in 2009.

David put on fast track

Bolarinwa backed by UK Athletics

by Ian Lamont

THAMESMEAD sprinter David Bolarinwa has the potential to win a medal at the Olympics in Tokyo in 2020, according to his latest funding boost.

UK Athletics have awarded the ambassador for Greenwich Starting Blocks a slice of their Lottery funding for a fourth year running as part of the national body's World Class Performance Programme.

Under strict new criteria that only awards training grants for people who they think can win medals at major championships, they have given him 'podium potential' funding.

It is one tier down from the top level funding for potential medallists in at the next Olympic Games in Rio, but indicates they rate him as a medal prospect for four years later, in Tokyo.

The grant was a timely gift, just before the Thamesmead speedster turned 20 on October 20.

"The main thing I wanted to achieve this year was to progress," said David, whose potential was first spotted by Starting Blocks, the royal borough's charity which supports aspiring professional sports men and women, for which he is now an ambassador.

"I progressed a little bit this year, but I believe I could have done more if I hadn't got injured.

"I'm working hard in the gym at the moment to make sure I have a strong body. It's one thing being able to run fast but I need to stay healthy.

"200m has brought me a lot of success, but I want to get back to what I started with," he explained, acknowledging that it is a tough event to make your mark.

But he has inspiration from another south Londoner, James Dasaolu, from Croydon.

"James wasn't always number one and it has taken him quite a long time," he said of the 25-year-old. "It's inspiring for me because I know if I stick at it anything is possible.

"British sprinting is getting better,
